Fernet-Branca: Protect the 'Net

Tim Howard x Kasey Keller

Two Generations. One Position. One Responsibility: Protect everything behind you.

A Moment in Time

The 2026 FIFA World Cup in North America is more than a tournament—it's a cultural convergence. Amidst the grandeur, we seek a space for deeper reflection.

Fernet-Branca

Founded in 1845, Fernet-Branca is distinctly Italian —bitter, complex, and acquired.

Its character is earned over time, understood by those who return to it.

Not for everyone. But deeply respected by those who embrace it.

A symbol of endurance, discipline, and longevity — a ritual built over time.

Tim Howard

"Secretary of Defense": Calm under pressure — composed, resilient, and unshaken. From the Premier League to the world stage, Howard built his legacy in the moments that break most players. A leader, a presence, and the last line when everything is on it.

Kasey Keller

"Mighty Kasey": Fearless, disciplined, and built to last. Across decades and leagues, Keller defined what consistency looks like at the highest level. A pioneer of the American game — and a foundation for those who followed.

The Spirit

Fernet-Branca lives in the moment—poured, passed, and thrown back.

In the U.S., it's become a ritual of its own: a beer and a shot, an end of shift, a start of something.

A shared language among strangers, a constant in unpredictable nights.

The Invitation
